'Twerk' and 'Selfie' – headline new words added to Oxford Dictionaries Online

Recently 'Twerk' and 'Selfie' headlined new words added to the Oxford Dictionaries Online. Today's generation of young people have created plenty of other new words. Their priority interests are technology, fashion, food and self-involvement; the 'me, me, me' generation! These areas are all reflected in the latest quarterly update to the online dictionary.

'Twerk' is a dance to popular music in a sexually provocative manner. Miley Cyrus famously did a twerk at the MTV Awards. 'Selfie' means when you have taken a photo of yourself, usually with a smartphone or webcam.

'BYOD' is an emerging phrase. 'BYOD' is an abbreviation for 'bring your own device' and is defined as the practice of allowing employees of an organisation to use their own computers, smartphones, or other devices for work purposes. 'Hackerspace' is another technology term, as is 'phablet'.

Other new words include 'squee' – when one expresses great excitement or delight, 'space tourism' and 'vom' – to be sick or vomit. 'Omnishambles' is when a situation has been comprehensively mismanaged. 'Jorts' are denim shorts. 'Geek chic' – is the dress or appearance and culture associated with computing or technology enthusiasts.

An 'LDR' is a long-distance relationship where one spends time on one's own. 'Girl crush' is an intense and typically non sexual liking or admiration felt by one woman or girl for another. Lastly today, 'Buzzworthy' is something that is likely to arouse interest and the attention of the public either by word of mouth or by the media.

SPEAKING

Think of three modern trendy words. Go round the room swapping details with others.

LISTENING – WRITING - DICTATION

The teacher will read some lines of the article slowly to the class.

READING

Students should now read the article aloud, swapping readers every paragraph.
